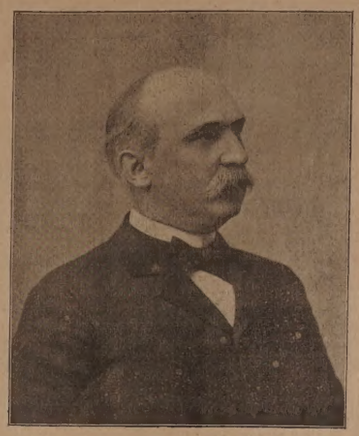
THE SENATORSHIP

(Nashua Daily Press.")

The indications are that our Lakeport friend, Hon. H. B. Quinby, has laid aside his ambition to succeed Senator Chandler in the United States senate. At any rate he is as still as a little mouse under a church carpet. It is better as it is.

Why?

Because the people are fast warming up to Hon. Henry E. Burnham, and Nashua, Dover, Portsmouth, and other cities with towns too numerous to mention have said through their leading men that the call is to Manchester, which has not had the senatorship, with exception of the few months that Governor Cheney served, since the resignation of Senator Clarke in 1867. Concord and the territory north of it have been represented by Senators Patterson, Blair, Cragin, Rollins, Pike, Chandler and Gallinger since the date mentioned. Taking into account with all else that Senator Wadleigh only has represented the thickly settled part of the states in all these years and that southern New Hampshire offers a candidate whose fitness no man can question—meantime recognizing the fact Senator Chandler has practically declared that he cannot longer advocate the principles of the party—it would seem the wise thing for all the candidates to turn in and make the call to Judge Burnham unanimous.



JUDGE HENRY E. BURNHAM.

For U. S. Senator.

Through the courtesy of the Nashua Press, the NEWS is enabled to publish a portrait of Hon. Henry E. Burnham, of Manchester. Judge Burnham is a candidate for United States Senator to succeed Hon. Wm. E. Chandler, who has given the public to understand that on several of the vital issues before the country he is not in sympathy with the policy of the Republican party, and who, therefore, cannot be longer looked upon as a desirable man to represent the interests of the state in national legislation.

Judge Burnham has all the qualities necessary to fill this high office to the credit of the state and advancement of the policy of progress which is necessary to secure the happiness of mankind in the territory that came under our flag in the smoke of battle. He believes in sound money and the tariff enactments that have brought us prosperity; he opposes all combinations that have a tendency to put hardships upon agriculture and mechanical industries, and, having forged his way to the front by his own industries, he is in every sense a man of the people; a courteous gentleman whom everyone may approach and hold conversation with without the slightest embarrassment.

Judge Burnham was for many years judge of the Probate Court of Hillsborough county, and it is noted of him that a more patient and upright man, who looked closely after the interests of every man and woman who had business at that Bench, never held that important office. He is a Sir Knight Mason, a member of the Amoskeag Veterans, has held innumerable public and private trusts with honor to himself and fidelity to the interests in his hands, while as public speaker—an orator in fact—he is the equal of any man in the state.

In a word, Judge Burnham has all the qualifications desired by the people of New Hampshire in the high office to which his friends and admirers would have him chosen, and, being assured that he is free from the entangling alliances that are offensive to the people and inimical to their interests, the NEWS will give him its support.

Interesting Locals Gathered Here and There.

Mrs. S. A. Peabody, of Terre Haute, Ind., sister of Rev. E. G. Eastman, is expecting to spend the winter at the parsonage.

The third annual rally of the Free Baptist Young People's Society of New Hampshire takes place at Laconia Oct. 17 and 18. A very interesting program has been prepared.

Major E. E. Beede is having a commodious boat house constructed below the American Flax Co's mill. It will be large enough to hold his steamer and row boat. H. V. Jones is doing the work.

Much good weather is yet expected by the weatherwise before winter closes in, notwithstanding the recent cold snap. October usually brings some of the finest weather of the whole year in the lake regions.

The work of screening Lake Winnipesaukee at Lakeport, under the direction of O. H. Daniels of that city, has been completed. It is understood that the fish commissioners are willing to screen Lake Winnisquam at East Tilton, but that a number of boat owners there refuse to give up their right of passage.

When a business man sends out of town for his stationery to get a shaved price of a cheap concern, he thinks he is saving a few cents, but the same man wears a visage as long as the face of a tramp begging for breakfast when the printer goes out of town for his clothes, groceries, or anything else he is in need of.

Harry Dow shot a fox under rather peculiar circumstances about two o'clock Sunday morning. He was awakened by a commotion in the poultry yard, and seizing a gun he rushed to the outside door. Gazing out he perceived, by the light of the moon, a fox endeavoring to secure and early breakfast, and raising the gun he fired and laid reynard low with two broken legs and a perforated body. Although clad in only a night dress, and without shoes or stockings, Mr. Dow rushed to the spot, over the frost-covered ground, and secured the fox. As the animal lay at a distance of 53 yards from the door, and the marksmen shot left-handed, his exploit was certainly remarkable in more ways than one.

Benj. Smith, of Beverly, Mass., is spending a few days with friends in town.

Louis Hawkins and family have taken possession of the Elliott tenement on High street.

The concert and promenade held under the auspices of Wamesit Hose Cos. Nos. 1 and 2, last week Wednesday night, was not very well attended, but there was no loss financially, and the affair proved an enjoyable one.

The harvest supper at the South church one evening last week was well attended, and $10 was netted from the entertainment.

The South church furnace was found to be defective a few days ago, and an appeal to the congregation for funds to repair it brought forth the sum of $30 within a few minutes. The furnace has since been repaired.

Howard Morrison was run over by N. B. Sanborn's team Saturday. One of the wheels passed over his head, but he came out of the adventure with nothing worse than a scratched ear.

A young lad was brought before Justice of the Peace B. R. Dearborn, Saturday, charged with purloining a pear on Highland street. He was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $14.62, but thanks to the prosecutor's appeal for mercy the boy was allowed his freedom on paying $4.62. He received a lecture from Justice Dearborn, however, and will probably buy his fruit at the stores hereafter.

Mrs. L. L. Smith, of Holderness, N. H., is visiting Mrs. Frank Glines.

Nathan Morrison and family are visiting in Vermont.

Alvin Peavey has returned from a trip to Chicago and other western cities.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Mansfield have returned from a week's sojourn in Boston.

Reuben Willard of Belmont, N.H., has been D. F. Bean's guest during the week.

Jas. Burleigh has returned from a visit to Boston, and will shortly leave for Salem, where he has secured a situation in a furniture establishment.

D. F. Bean took a party around Squam Lake one day last week, the party consisting of: Mrs. Mary Chapman, Jackson, Mich.; Mrs. Jennie Avery, Belmont, N.H.; Miss Bessie Morrison, Mrs. Frank Glines, Meredith; Reuben Willard, Belmont, N.H. All reported a good time.

Three candidates received the 3rd and 4th degrees at the regular meeting of Winnipesaukee Grange, last Friday evening. The 1st and 2nd degrees will be conferred on four candidates in the near future.

Extensive preparations are being made in connection with the show of vegetables, fruits and other articles under the auspices of Winnipesaukee Grange, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, Oct. 25. A few names have been added to the committee, published last week, and our next issue will contain further particulars of the affair.

A NEW WHARF FUND.

The Wharf Fund has come to a standstill. It has taken ten weeks and several columns of space in the NEWS to raise the paltry sum of $70—$58 cash and about $12 in work. The list of subscribers contains the names of only 21 residents of Meredith. Can it be possible that only 21 of the 1700 inhabitants of this town are ashamed of that dilapidated pile of rotten planks at the foot of Lake street?

The NEWS is loth to give up the project. We want to see the place grow and prosper. A town cannot increase in wealth and influence if its citizens are divided. Petty personal or political grievances should not be allowed to thrust themselves into matters that threaten the welfare of the community at large. With a new wharf, now that the Boston & Maine is erecting a new station and freight house, Meredith would present an appearance more in accord with the gifts bequeathed by nature.

This is probably the last appeal the NEWS will make for funds, although we will continue to publish the subscription list until cold weather sets in, when the wharf must be constructed if we are to have a new one.

Remember, 'tis "more blessed to give than to receive," and that the "Lord loveth a cheerful giver."

DR. GREENE FOR CONGRESS

While the NEWS as a rule eschews politics, it respectfully desires to call the attention of its readers to the candidacy of Dr. J. A. Greene for the Republican nomination in the First District to succeed Congressman Sulloway. The NEWS has no politics. It caters to none of the political parties, and does not care whether the Doctor is a Republican, a Democrat, a Mugwump, or a humble follower of Populist Jerry, the sockless Socrates of the wild, woolly West. We believe that among all the candidates clamoring to succeed the "Tall Pine," Dr. Greene has the first claim on the gratitude and affection of the voters of the First District. He has done more for this section of the Granite State than all of the others put together, with "Cy" Sulloway thrown in, and now that the warm-hearted Doctor, having retired from active business pursuits and with a great deal of time on his hands, is willing to devote a few years to the service of the residents of the district in Congress, it would be a graceful act on the part of the delegates to make the nomination unanimous.

The Doctor is a man of wide experience and a ready debater. He has travelled extensively, and his trips to foreign countries served to intensify his Americanism and broaden his views. He is a man above suspicion, and will not go to Congress for the purpose of increasing his bank account. Money is no object to this aspirant for political honors, and that fact alone should have great weight with the nominating delegates. The halls of Congress already contain too many who are willing and anxious to barter their constituents' interests for gold, and the First District now has a chance to nominate and elect a man rich beyond the dreams of avarice, one whose hand is ever ready to dip deep and often into his pocket when called upon to relieve distress or assist in the industrial and commercial progress of the state so dear to his heart.

The Doctor is the logical candidate for the position, and the NEWS predicts that his name will be the only one presented at the convention.

While we have never seen any occasion for the vicious abuse and denunciation of the President and Attorney-General of which the case of Capt. Carter has been made the pretext, we are free to confess that the long delay (more than two years) in carrying out the sentence of the court martial impressed us unpleasantly and it is hoped that the Administration will now make public the real reasons for the delay.

Everything is coming Dr. Greene's way thus early in the struggle for the nomination to succeed Congressman Sulloway. The latest bit of good news, and one that augurs well for his ultimate success, is the announcement made by the Laconia Democrat that it cannot support the Doctor's candidacy because its intimate business relations and strong personal friendship for two of the candidates (Messrs. Jewett and Greene) compels it to be neutral, "for the present at least." If the Democrat should change its mind and support the Doctor later on, and it throws out a hint that such may be the case, well may he throw up his hands (and the sponge) and fervently exclaim, "Oh, Lord, save me from my friends!"

In the last twenty years, our imports of iron and steel have decreased in proportion to the increase of the exports. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, we exported manufactures of iron and steel valued at $93,715,951, while our imports of the same were reduced to $12,092,239.

The claim by some newspapers that the contemplated meeting of President Diaz and President McKinley at Chicago is a prearranged plot to bring about the absorption of Mexico by the United States, is such a piteous rant as to hardly deserve any notice.

Senator Burrows of Michigan seems disposed to take a more cheerful view of the Republican situation than he expressed several months ago, and will now make a few campaign speeches in Ohio to help out the McKinley ticket.

A former ruling of the Internal Revenue Bureau has been reversed, and it has now been decided that annuities payable either for life or during a term of years, are not taxable under the War Revenue Act.

The Illinois man who claims to have been cured of insanity by an injection of goat's lymph, may yet have to produce evidence that he has fully recovered.

While Dewey has talked a good deal for publication, it must be conceded that he has carefully refrained from talking about anything important.

While Senator Hanna is patting the trusts on the back and asking to be shown the evidence that they are harmful, it would be well for the trusts to keep their hands on their pocket-books.

Gen. Shafter has asked that the government furnish him a phaeton in which to ride around on duty. As some civil officers are allowed to ride in smart turnouts at the public expense, he doubtless thinks that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the grander.

Col. Watterson intimates that the Democratic factions in Kentucky are getting ready to bury the hatchet. The trouble is that one of them wants to bury it just below Mr. Goebel's ears.

We probably obtain a better idea of the attitude of Admiral Dewey from his reiteration of the remark that the Filipinos are better fitted for self-goverment than the Cubans than from any other of his expressions.

The young man who said that the "I. R." on the stamps you have to put on telegrams and bank checks meant "infernal robbery," will find plenty to agree with him.

Unfortunately the position that Canada wants to take in the boundary dispute is on our side of the line.

It is unfortunate for the Administration that all the efforts to conduct a smokeless campaign in the Philippines have failed.

England may find that it is safer to send ultimatums to the Transvaal than to send troops.

Admiral Dewey has talked on politics just enough to place him in the doubtful column.

Ohio's floating vote will probably be pretty well soaked before it is taken in out of the wet in November.

GEN. JAMONT.
(Commander in Chief of the French Army.)

"GOD SAVE THE STATE."

(Nashua Daily Press.")

Ex-Governor Busiel's Laconia Democrat made a bad break last week in accusing Governor Rollins and his staff of absenting themselves from the Dewey reception in New York because free railroad passes and lodging were not assured from the start, and in tacking on that had it been a junket with all the bills paid they would have been promptly on hand, exclaiming in concert: "God save the state!"

It was to say the least, coming from such a quarter, not in good taste, and the Meredith NEWS—forgetful of the fact that the ex-governor was born within a "scream and a stone's throw" of its office and unwilling to learn to love and admire him—jumps on the complaining paragraph with both feet, at the same time reminding whom it concerns that a former chief executive of the state and his staff rode on passes, and was not over modest at the free victuals counter whenever an invitation was given to fall in. Under the circumstances the NEWS thinks it a little late to shout, "God save the state." The NEWS is right about it.

When Dewey was driven to the U. S. Capitol in Wahington to receive the sword voted him by Congress, President McKinley occupied the same carriage but did not participate in the general ovation tendered Dewey along the entire route. History may repeat itself and this scene be re-enacted in March 1901 if Dewey instead of McKinley is elected President next fall.

An exchange predicted that Roosevelt would be right in it at the Dewey parade. Undoubtedly. When the enthusiasm was at the highest the voice of the Rough Rider was heard above the din proclaiming with the immortal Logan, "alone I done it, boy."

Vice-President Hobart is suffering from nervous prostration and it is reported that he may not be strong enough to run in 1900. As 1900 approaches other candidates are liable to be oppressed with the same kind of doubts.

Truth in Manila arose again with difficulty. "I am not crushed," she said, "but I am pretty badly censored."

The good sense of Senator Hanna in denouncing the Dewey presidential talk as "indecent" is not very apparent.

The coal trust will not fix the price until they find out how much money the people have.

Frightful cries from some wild animal, presumably a bear, were heard recently, issuing from the wooded hillside back of the Central House, Holderness.

AUGUST FLOWER.

"It is a surprising fact," says Prof. Houton, "that my travels in all parts of the world, for the last ten years, I have met more people having used Green's August Flower than any other remedy, for dyspepsia, deranged liver and stomach, and for constipation. I find for tourists and salesmen, or for persons filling office positions, where headaches and general bad feelings from irregular habits exist, that Green's August Flower is a grand remedy. It does not injure the system by frequent use, and is excellent for sour stomachs and indigestion." Sample bottles free at Sanborn's Drug Store.

Is an interesting place. There you may see the best men in the land and there you can get the best food.

You should also be able to get the best tea.

A capital tea is the only kind that is suitable for the Capitol, and a capital tea is Chase & Sanborn's package tea, fit for the most fastidious.

These package teas of Chase & Sanborn's come in pound and half-pound air-tight leaded forms.

By this method the excellent flavor of the teas is not lost by contact with the air.

Another advantage of packing them in this way is that it makes it impossible for their teas to be adulterated.

Among the most popular kinds of their famous package teas are the following: — the Kohinoor, an English Breakfast Tea, the Orloff, a Formosa Oolong, and the Orange Pekoe, an India and Ceylon tea.

Any one of these that you buy, that may best suit your taste, will prove itself to be a capital tea.

ADVERTISE

TO A HORSELESS CARRIAGE.

Smooth, sleek and silliest of wheeling things,
I cannot find in my imaginings,
In natural or in supernatural ways,
The slightest reason to prolong thy days.

Of all the vain conceptions of the mind
Thou art the vainest that the ages find,
Except for those whose blood doth chance to flow
In dull and melancholy-wise, and slow.

What is the joy of driving? Is it mere Transportment of the flesh from there to here?

A method whereby sluggish man may be Removed from A to Izzard speedily?

Or is it pleasant for the eye to view,
And hand to master steeds, or one or two,
When prancing o'er the hard and well-paved street,
With champing bits, and lithe limbs running fleet?

Avaunt! thou horridest of modern things!
Vamoose! Unto thy ugly self take wings!
Thine's not with all thy gaud and glitter coarse Thou'lt e'er supplant that best of friends, the horse.

—John Kendrick Bangs, in Woman's Home Companion.

The Preacher of Alpine

By A. A. SMITH.
—Written for this paper.

EARLY in the summer of 1899, I was persuaded to join a party of friends bound for a month's outing among the Colorado mountains. Priding myself upon my ability to derive profit and enjoyment from solitary expeditions, I left my comrades among the popular resorts surrounding Colorado Springs and Manitou, and pushed on to the almost deserted village of Alpine. Ten years ago this now desolate hamlet was a flourishing town of several thousand inhabitants. It boasted an immense silver smelter, two banks, numerous saloons, and all the accompanying features of a great mining center.

I immediately secured as my guide an old timer known as "Uncle Rastus." He told me that he had lived there "sence Uncle Sam committed the crime o' '73."

I was without doubt the most troublesome "tenderfoot" which the old gentleman had seen for many a day, for I resolved upon seeing everything to be seen, and I gave him not the slightest opportunity for rest. Within a few hours after my arrival he had shown me over the entire townsite, now strewn with broken bottles and overgrown with quaking aspen; he had given me, in detail, the history of the town and the principal men who had risked life and fortune amid its wild scenes, and although it was then quite late, I begged him to go with me to the nearest mountain.

"You won't be going to climb that mounting to-night, pardner?" he said, turning to me with a startled look as we hurried along through the fast descending twilight.

"Certainly not to-night. But why do you look so scared, uncle? You know every foot of ground for miles around here. What are you afraid of?"

"I ain't afeard of no other place," he answered, in a low voice. "But I won't go near there in the dark."

I looked in the direction indicated by his trembling finger, and I could not, or rather did not, suppress an exclamation of surprise and delight. Nestling in the heart of a tiny vale which lay between two barren rocky cliffs, was a miniature landscape, a plot of artistic beauty, perhaps 50 feet square. The last rays of the setting sun streamed through the opening between the hills, and they lingered as in a benediction upon the low white pickets of the enclosing fence, the small evergreens arranged in graceful curves upon the green turf, and the cluster of bright flowers grouped about the center. And the center was a slender cross, so festooned with ivy and clematis as to completely hide the material, at the same time preserving the form of the structure.

"What is that beautiful little garden?" I inquired, as I returned to my companion, who had remained behind while I passed on down the pathway.

"It's the preacher's grave," he replied, in the same awe-struck voice. I read it and keep it like that myself. But come back now, young man. I'm plum used up with your tearin' around at this rate, and you'll wear yourself out, too."

I tried in vain to laugh the old mountaineer out of his mood, and, not succeeding, followed him back toward the town.

"Now tell me about this preacher's grave," I said, after we had eaten our simple meal and drawn our chairs out side the cabin door. "I am curious to know, and just tired enough to listen."

"Well," said the veteran, as he lighted his pipe, "'twas in '86, one summer night, jest like this, that I first see the preacher. You know how 'twas then, the boom was over. Hundreds of tenderfoots about, like you, had tumbled out here to stake claims an' git rich in a hurry, but most of them got sick an' died, some spent all the little pile they'd brung with 'em an' went back a-cussin' the hull country, an' the mines, but there was a few that swore they'd stay and fight it out.

"It was hard times, an' we was a pretty tough lot, I guess.

"One night we was all sittin' over there"—pointing to a rickety old building, which still bore a sign announcing two drinks for 25 cents—"when we see a peart little feller about your size comin' up from the station. It was pretty nigh dark, but we could see quick as a wink that he wasn't our size at all.

"He was the preacher, I suppose?"

"Yes, he was the preacher, an' he was a-takin' his vaycation; but the poor feller didn't get much vaycation around where the boys was. Howsomever, it wasn't but a few days till we all set lots of store by him, spite of his nice clothes, an' his white hands, an' his voice, soft an' deliente as a woman's. Somehow we couldn't help but love that little fellar, though I guess we tried hard enough to hate him, the Lord fergive us."

Uncle Rastus paused and drew his coat sleeve across his eyes, and his voice trembled again when he resumed his narrative.

"He was such a pretty, young-lookin' feller, black-haired an' blue-eyed, an' there was somethin' about him—I don't know what it was, but he could go in amongst them boys when they was havin' the highest kind of a time, an' cool 'em down till they was like so many innocent babies. If a feller wanted a head put on him, all he needed to do was to say something agin the preacher. Everybody liked him 'cept Bill Larcom. Bill hated him from the first, an' one day he came tearin' into the saloon an' said: "That d—d little white-fingered preacher's been stealin' hosses from the camp up the gulch. One o' the wimmin spotted him, an' sez she'll swear to it." But with all his snortin' Bill couldn't find a single man to go with him to where the preacher stayed. So he said he'd go alone, an' he did. He came back pretty soon, and said the preacher owned to bein' up to the camp, but said he went to see a sick man, an' that the woman told the story because she had a grudge agin him."

"The boys all laughed at Bill fer makin' sech a row, an' accusin' the preacher, an' of course it made him madder than ever. He jest tore out o' the house, swearin' at the hull gang, an' the preacher in perticeler. We didn't see nothin' of the preacher that night nor the next day, but the woman who kept the house said he was sick.

"Well, the next morning word came that Frank Payson's old black Donald, the finest hoss in the state, was stole, an' a woman what used to keep the dance house over there, said she seen the preacher sneakin' round Frank's stable 'bout ten o'clock at night. Still the boys was all ready to fight for the preacher. They agreed though, that some of 'em would go with Bill to the house an' talk it over. The woman met 'em an' said the preacher wasn't there. He'd gone somewhere up the gulch.

"Course that was the worst thing that could happen, as you've see yet, when the news came, the boys was all drinkin' hard, tryin' to drown their feelin's over some hard luck in the mines.

"Well, young man, I can't tell ye the perticelers of the next day; I jest can't. But you know how 'tis when a feller like Bill Larcom gets the lead over a crowd of half drunk miners. They tore up the gulch an' found the preacher at a house where there was a sick man. He was so pale an' sick himself that he couldn't hardly set up; an' the woman said she thought her husband was dyin', so she had sent her boy after the preacher. Old Donald was in the barn, sure enough, an' they asked the preacher to explain that. He said that he tried to get a hoss an' couldn't, an' finally he went to Frank's house to ask for Donald. But Frank's folks was all away. Then he said the boy cried, an' he took on so that he couldn't stan' it. He jest saddled the hoss an' rode away, thinkin' he'd be back afore day, an' Frank wouldn't care.

"If the boys had been sober, an' took time to think, 'twould have been all right, but it wasn't that way. In less than two hours 'twas all over. The preacher talked to 'em kind an' cheerful like, an' told 'em they'd find their mistake when 'twas too late. He smiled an' said he knew they wasn't theirselves; 'twas the whisky that done it.

"An' they did find the mistake, young man. About 12 hours after some of us laid him up there the rascals was caught. An' then, sir, the grief of them boys was awful. There ain't none of 'em here now, but they tried mighty hard to atone. Every year them that's left—there's only four now—puts up liberal to me fer keepin' the place so pretty. I'd do it, though, all the same."

The old man hobbled into the house, leaving me alone. One solitary star appeared between those ghostly cliffs, keeping its lonely vigil above that lovely spot which surrounded the cross, and the ever-quaking aspens shivered, and the rushing waters of Chalk creek chanted a requiem for the gentle, heroic soul of the preacher of Alpine.

JUAN ISIDRO JIMINEZ.

Dominican Capitalist Who Is Determined to Be President of the West Indian Republic.

Don Juan Isidro Jiminez, who is now so prominent in San Domingo affairs, was at one time one of the richest men in this hemisphere. He owned immense plantations in Cuba and San Domingo, and with the power that money gave him managed to get his own way in almost everything he desired. Sometime after Heureaux became president of San Domingo he sent for Jiminez and told him there was room on the island for only one big man at a time. Jiminez was not convinced that this was really the case until some of the buildings on his plantation had been burned. Then he decided that Heureaux was right and he sold out to a German syndicate and retired from the island, to await an opportunity for revenge. He thought this chance had come when the war with Spain broke out. Under the pretext that he was going to organize an expedition to fight for Cuba libre, he was allowed by the United States government to pack a little steamship, the Fanita, with some San Domingo refugees and set sail from Mobile. But instead of going to Cuba he went to San Domingo. One dark night he landed there with his cargo of refugees, expecting to find 1,000 insurgents under arms awaiting him. But his letter of plans had miscarried, the raid was unexpected, and no revolution had been started for him. He fired a few shots, but was forced to beat a retreat. Jiminez boasts that Heureaux was killed by his agents and that one of these days he intends to go to San Domingo and take up the presidency.

DR. ORONHYATEKHA.

Remarkable Career of the Mohawk Indian Who Heads the Order of Foresters.

Dr. Oronhyatekha, the president, newly elected, of the Fraternal congress, is a full-blooded Mohawk Indian, of a portly and striking presence. His powerful face lacks the very high cheek bones usually attributed to the Indian type, his iron-gray hair is slightly curled and his eye is kindly rather than sharp.

This representative of the fierce Mohawks was born 58 years ago near Brantford, Can., at the Six Nations reservations. He acquired the rudiments of an English education in the industrial school near by. Gifted with an absorbing thirst for knowledge, he ran away to the United States. For awhile he was in New York, where he attracted the attention of a benevolent gentleman. Later he studied at the Wesleyan academy at Wilbraham, Mass., where he supported himself by manual toil. Then followed a year of teaching among his own people, after which he began his college education at Kenyon college, O. He was there three years and then spent three years at Toronto university. He presented the address on behalf of the Six Nations to the prince of Wales when the latter was making his tour. Sir Henry Askand, the physician to the prince, invited him to study at Oxford, in England. This opportunity was eagerly embraced.

DR. ORONHYATEKHA.
(Supreme Chief Ranger Ancient Order of Foresters.)

Oronhyatekha, since 1881, has devoted himself to the welfare of the Ancient Order of Foresters, of which he is supreme chief ranger. There was not a dollar in the treasury when he began his work, but he has filled it with $10,500,000 and brought up the membership to over 120,000.

He inherits the oratorical gift of his race, and this he has increased by a study of the best English models. He also possesses extraordinary executive ability, of which the success of his order is the witness. He is married to a woman who also is a pure Mohawk, and he has one daughter.

BLOOD AND NERVE REMEDY.

Weak Men Suffering From Nervous Debility, Seminal Weakness, Weak Nerves, Despondency and Physical Exhaustion, the result of over-work, indiscretions, excesses and abuses, have brought themselves to a condition where they must have the best help science can give to save them from prostration, despair and death. But kind Nature forgives; there is one sure remedy to cure you, to save you from nervous prostration, insanity, paralysis, despair and death, and that is that wonderful discovery, that vitalizing invigorator, Dr. Greene's Nervura. This wonderful restorative of brain, nerve and body, will give back to the weakened and exhausted system the strength that it has lost. It will impart strength and vigor to the brain and nerves, vitalize and invigorate all the physical powers, and restore you again to that grand degree of lusty strength, of bounding pulse and strong physical and nerve power, which by over-work, ignorance or folly, you have exhausted. Dr. Greene, 35 Temple Pl., Boston, Mass., the great specialist in nervous diseases of men invites sufferers from nervous debility and seminal weakness to consult him free of charge, either personally or by letter. All communications are confidential. Sufferers can be assured of the sympathy and best advice and counsel from this skilled and experienced physician to whom thousands of men owe their present health and happiness.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it,—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance, the kidney poison in the blood is liable to attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worst form of kidney trouble. Kidney trouble can be detected although it be slow and deceptive. First, by analysis of the urine; second, by the simple test of setting the urine aside in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, when a cloudy or brick dust settling indicates it.

It was for just such troubles that in His infinite power and goodness the Great Physician caused Swamp-Root to grow for the benefit of suffering mankind, leaving it for His servant, Dr. Kilmer, the great kidney and bladder specialist, to discover it and make it known to the world. Its wonderful efficacy in promptly curing the most distressing cases is truly marvelous. You may have a sample bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, by mail free.

J. M. MAYO.

Last spring the News published a short sketch of J. M. Mayo, the well known and successful bill poster, and we feel called upon, on account of the startling increase in his business during the past summer, to again refer to him and his excellent work in complimentary terms.

Seven years ago the subject of this sketch commenced business on a small scale, but with a determination to secure a good class of customers by doing his work in a conscientious and upright manner. From the start it was uphill work, but steadily, year after year, he gained the confidence of many firms who believe that printers' ink pays if their announcements are placed in prominent places in an artistic manner. His last year's business was larger than that of any two preceding years, but since last spring he has pasted and distributed more bills, pamphlets and general printed matter than he had in the previous six years put together, and from the number of letters recently received enquiring about his boards, terms, etc., his next season's business promises to double this year's.

Mr. Mayo's record is one to be proud of. He has dozens of testimonials from the leading patent medicine firms in the U.S., and the News heartily adds its testimony to theirs in connection with the manner in which he conducts his business.

During the past season he has been entrusted with large orders from the proprietors of Moxie, Hood, Lydia Pinkham, Dr. Miles, and other noted firms. His favorite territory extends about 100 miles north of Meredith, but he executes contracts covering the entire state,

Mr. Mayo has two boards on Main street, Plymouth (population 1850), and another near the Plymouth station, 105 feet long.

One in Ashland (p. 1190), 128 feet long, near the station.

A 56-foot board occupies a prominent position near the station at New Hampton (p. 935.)

His board in Meredith near the station and on the stage line, 366 feet in length, is the longest board in the state on the railway line. He also has a number of smaller boards in Meredith and other towns.

WILL FIGHT.

London, Oct. 11.—It cannot be doubted that England's reply will be a flat rejection of President Kruger's demands, and at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon, English time, an actual state of war will exist.

As the British troops continue landing in South Africa and advancing to the front, it is quite possible, according to the terms of the Boer ultimatum, that hostilities have already commenced, as Kruger has everything to gain by an instant advance.

Sharp fighting is likely to occur at Mafeking, where Colonel Baden-Powell is pluckily holding his exposed position.

QUITE A DIPLOMAT.

Dr. Leyds, Secretary of State for the Boer Republic, Is a Match for Joseph Chamberlain.

Dr. W. J. Leyds, secretary of state for the Transvaal, is likely to give Joseph Chamberlain, colonial secretary of England, many a troublesome hour before the Boer is Anglacised. Dr. Leyds is described as a man of peculiarly strong personal power, gifted with a persuasive tongue, and fully alive to the fact that the Boer and the Englishman can never agree. Dr. Leyds is particularly known for his hatred of everything English. He is the statesman who visited Germany and secured from Emperor William recognition of the independence of the Transvaal republic. The emperor promised him that he would appoint to the Transvaal a German resident instead of a consul. That is the way in which the independence of the Transvaal is acknowledged. Emperor William likes the man, for he decorated him some 13 months ago, and other honors were shown him. He is considered one of the very ablest members of the Transvaal government. President Kruger intrusted to him the negotiations with Germany, which have been in progress for some months past. These negotiations are of a nature by which in reality Dutch and German interests become as one in the South African country, and make the task of England in conquering the Transvaal all the more difficult. The friendship of Emperor William for President Kruger has been inspired by Dr. Leyds. The doctor is now in Holland, where he has also aroused public sentiment and secured action in the form of protests to Queen Victoria against the carrying out of the Chamberlain programme in the Transvaal. Dr. Leyds is of Dutch descent, but is not a Boer.
